

The Most Reverend Roger Herft, Anglican Archbishop of Perth

The Jesus All About Life campaign will provide Christians across our state the opportunity to connect, in a united and prayerful way, with those in our communities who are strangers to the story of the love of God in Jesus Christ. I am happy to endorse the efforts of the Steering Committee and I am confident that Western Australian Christians from all churches will make the most of this opportunity to join together in the joyful task of making Christ known.

Robert Watson, Moderator Uniting Church in Australia, Western Australia

I think the two things that really impressed our Council was the quality of the television advertisements and the ability of individual congregations to participate at the point and level they wish and are able.

Barry Austin Executive Minister Churches of Christ in WA Inc

I am writing to formally advise that the Churches of Christ State Executive has agreed to endorse the above campaign and promote it among our churches.

Mark Wilson Director of Ministries Baptist Churches of WA

It is great to hear that people from all denominations are excited about working together to share the gospel in WA. We believe that this is a link for unity amongst Christian believers from various denominations and backgrounds as we endeavour to be witnesses in this state.

Phil Baker, Senior Minister, Riverview Church

Taking Jesus to the street is of course what the Gospel is all about, the message of the Church finds its greatest potency when it permeates a society and grabs people's ear and attention who otherwise would be disinterested. I highly commend this wonderful initiative

Ross Clifford – Principal Morling College, past President Baptist Union of Australia

I believe the time is right for the Jesus. All about life campaign. Sydney is a searching city, people are asking questions, 2009 is the right time. I encourage all Baptist Churches, all churches to get behind this campaign. People are asking questions in the streets, people are asking questions in their churches, this campaign has a wonderful opportunity to see the Gospel spread.

Iain M Trainor (Major), Divisional Commander, The Salvation Army - Western Australia Division

JAAL is one of the most exciting non-denominational programs for connecting with the unchurched and training the Saints I have found in 35 years of ministry. I would highly commend it to all Churches.
